Bee Hive Week April 28 - May 3

Next week is Bee Hive Week. To some people that statement may not carry much significance. Many may not know the meaning of the term. The Bee Hive work is the feminine equivalent to the Boy Scout work or much the same as the Girl Guide.

Anyone who has studied the life habits of the honey bee can readily understand why we take her for our symbol. The bee is a worker, ambitious and unselfish. She carries on in obedience to the unseen spirit of the hive, accomplishing all that she can for the best good of all.

So do the Bee Hive Girls carry on. They fill cells in seven fields, the fields of religion, home business, Arts and crafts, public service, health and out of doors. A girl who is a good Bee Hive girl will be a better girl, and woman.

Encourage your daughter in her Bee Hive Work and you will be richly rewarded. Next week is Bee Hive Week. On Tuesday next, the Second Ward are having a Bee Hive Buzz. Both the fathers and the mothers of the Bee Hive girls of the second Ward are invited. It starts at 7 thirty at the Ward Chapel. You will be entertained with a play and program. There will also be a lunch. Come and see what your girls are doing.

This Sunday evening in the Second Ward the Services will take the form of a Missionary farewell for Jack Stevens and Arley Alfred who are leaving soon for missions. You are cordially invited to attend this service.

FASTBALL TEAM TO BE CALLED TRIPLE Ds

The name of the Raymond Fastball Team is now the Triple "Ds".

This was considered the best of the many names that were submitted during the name contest last week. The prize goes to J. Golden Snow for his headwork. The name stands for John Deere Dodge and DeSoto Service and we think Golden must have done quite a bit of thinking to arrive at the answer.

The Fast Ball Association and Karl Wilde wish to thank those who sent in entries for their interest, and promise to try to keep their interest throughout the coming season.

As soon as the weather permits practice will begin and all those interested in the game are invited to turn out and try for a place on the coming provincial champion Fast Ball Team. (So they say.)

ROTE SPOKES

News Items From Rotary

Eighteen good men and true (Rotarians) met at the Second Ward Monday April 21st, for their weekly meeting. The attendance was good, but not good enough. Where were the following delinquents: Tom Roberts, Scott Salmon, Mose Fromm and Neils Peterson? I know boys, stuck in some mud hole.

After some tall tales of various roads encountered, President Rol called the meeting to order and again a warmly appreciated dinner was served by the Second Ward Ladies Auxiliaries. By the way President, who is our Sergeant-at-Arms— you'd think he would have a piano there for us to sing with. We miss those sing-songs and we had better do something about it.

Warren Jones reported on his representation at the T.B. Mobile Clinic meeting. A program has been set up with John Landysheff as Committee Chairman. Dates and place of proposed visit will be announced publicly by this committee. Rotarians will be called on for transportation.

Howard Melchin outlined what his Committee has done towards Boys and Girls week. It was felt that at least this first year a too elaborate program should not be undertaken. Therefore it is proposed to get aside one day in conjunction with the School's Field day. On this day the Rote's will sponsor an election for a Mayor and Town Council elected from among the youth of the Town. They will be our town governing body for the day. A Track Meet will be held and a gala day wound up by a free show and dance. Watch for dates.

We were very happy to have the Reverend Larke with us. He was representing the Legion and read a Brief from them outlining their views and desires towards a Legion Memorial Hall for Raymond. Reverend Larke, after reading the brief, commented and expressed some of his personal ideas. We are heartily in accord with his expression that any Memorial to the Vets of World War 2 should take the shape of something useful to the returned vets and also the citizens of the town. It is felt by the Legion that the interests of all concerned would best be served by having this memorial erected in the form of a building that can be used as a Legion Club room, a Greyhound Bus Depot, Snack Bar and a meeting place for Service Clubs and such as Lions and Rotarians. The Vets wish to know what support they can expect financially and morally from the Rotary Club. After a brief discussion among club members it was suggested by President Rol that in view of the several angles Death came quietly Wednesday, to one of Raymond's oldest and most respected pioneers, Peter James Christensen. Born November 15th, 1858 in Mill Creek, Utah, Mr. Christensen "P.J." as he was familiarly known, came to Raymond in 1902, leaving Nephi Utah with his family where he held the position of Bishop of the L.D.S. Church there.

He was a great booster for the Sugar Factory and worked to get the first factory here.

Along with the late Christopher Nilsson he organized the first band in Raymond.

Twice married, he was the father of twenty children, twelve of whom are still living. His second wife, Sylvia Knight died in 1930 in Raymond. He also leaves forty four grandchildren and nineteen great grandchildren. The surviving children are Mrs. Vernon Brown (Rhoda) Mrs. Esther Schonfeld, Mrs. Grant Sutton (Marie) and James, all of Magna Utah, Mrs. Brigham Garrett (Zoia) of Nephi Utah, Mrs. Edna Bishop, Spring Coulee, Melvin, Parley, Bill and Mrs. Malt Hyde, Beth all of Lethbridge, Elmo and Lenard of Raymond, and one sister in Mona Utah.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

which needed to be looked into the decision of the Rotary Club had best be deferred until a later date. He thanked Rev. Larke for his time and invited him to return at an early date.

For the program, Warren Jones, under the subject of Rotary Information, gave a brief history of Rotary. Back in 1905 Paul P. Harris, an out of town, lonely and unacquainted with city life gathered together, in Chicago, a group of young business men in similar circumstances, to help befriended each other. There was no inspired beginning in Rotary. As Andrew Carnegie might have said it was more perspiration than inspiration. The young men looked forward to meetings, banished "Mister" and used first names. They were thus able to enjoy a wider fellowship and to help each other in their respective vocations.

The Club grew by leaps and bounds, representatives of different nationalities, religions and political faiths coming in. The ceased to be content with isolationism and began Community Service built upon the rock of fellowship and goodwill. Club No 2 was organized in San Francisco. Rotary soon spread Northward across the Canadian border to Winnipeg. Two Canadians, James W. Davidson and Colonel J. Layton Ralston were instrumental in helping Rotary complete the span of the world. Rotary came up the hard way through the hard work of self-sacrificing men who gave of themselves unsparingly.

We quote Paul P. Harris: "No, Mr. Rotarian, I did not in 1905 foresee a world-wide movement of 6,000 Clubs and 300,000 men. When a man plants an unpromising sapling in early Spring-time can he be sure that someday there will grow a mighty tree. Does he not have to reckon on sun and rain and the smile of providence? Once he sees the first bud—oh, then he can begin to dream of shade."

Thanks Warren for a very informative insight into Rotary.

Until next Monday then, this is your Rotarian who says: "Don't worry, everyone's as baffled as you are."

Showing Saturday at the Capitol "Cluny Brown" Don't miss it.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank all those who, by contributing the use of their trucks, shovels, and time, helped us to get the cinder track in shape. We also extend thanks to the Sugar Factory for cinders and the use of their crane.

We expect to have the track ready for use in about ten days.

HISTORY OF RAYMOND

By ELIZABETH KING

June 2nd was Fast Day; they stopped held meeting and thanked their heavenly Father for bringing them to this new land in safety. President Card arose early the morning of June 3 aroused the camp and an early start was made. The party was met by the Mounted Police who informed them that the water in the St. Mary's River had fallen nearly 2 feet and that it would not be necessary to use the boat. This word was received with great relief and deep gratitude that the Lord had answered their prayers—no more deep rivers to cross, no more mountains to climb, no more hardships, but peace and rest from weary travel after an eight weeks trip. When they reached Lees Creek Mr. Card was the first to alight and then helped Aunt Zina down. Wilford Woolf who was then four years old said, looking all over for houses, "Ma, you said we'd be home tonight." "Yes," she answered, "this will be home from now on." With quivering lips the little fellow said, "Where's all the houses?"

Soon spaces were cleared and tents pitched, animals cared for, supper over and early to bed to keep warm and dry. The next morning there was 5 inches of snow on the ground. It is said that Mr. Cochrane and his foreman came over in a buck board to move the settlers off the land but after looking down from the hill and seeing their small numbers, turned back with the remark, "Oh, let them stay, they'll all winter kill anyway". But Mr. Cochrane was mistaken; those sturdy pioneers didn't winter kill. They were thrifty and the Lord blessed them. There was quite a lot of wild fruit on the hill sides which they picked and stewed to make pies and puddings. There were Saskatoons, Goose Berries, Choke cherries, Starberries, wild geese, ducks, prairie chicken and fish. Then they soon plowed a spot of ground and planted gardens and dried corn, peas and beans, salted down cucumbers, so they had a fair living. They made their own soap and tallow candles. These lines describe the spirit of those noble people. "Their cabin homes were simple, an short their bill of fare. But they had food sufficient, And they were glad to share With visitors and settlers And all who came their way. Indians too were welcomed And no one thought to pay."

Aunt Zina and Aunt Amy Allen bought the first two organs in those early days and every one sang as they took turns playing.

THE FIRST WEDDING

Two years after the arrival of those first few pioneers Heber S. Allen and Amy Louise Leonard were married. There was a grand celebration. The best silver and linen was loaned for the occasion. The wedding cake was seven tiers high and beautifully trimmed.

Aunt Amy wore a beautiful white dress which took from seven to ten yards of material to make. Their first home was a tent.

Johnny and Lucinda Woolf were married in June of that same year 1889.

Much more of this very interesting history has been recorded by Mrs. Jane Bates who is probably the best authority on the early history of Cardston. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Woolf 1887 plan-

"To me, belief in individual survival is a horror. To realize that, think not of your own individual survival, but of mine. Imagine GBS going on for centuries. Could you bear it?"

LADY NATHAN SAYS NO MORE VITAL JOB THAN FAMILY CARE

LONDON.—When people tell Lady Nathan she has a "big job" on her hands she invariably replies: "So has every other housewife."

She now is chairman of the Independent London County Council—the second woman member of the council's history—but in addition to her 40-hour week of meetings and committees she is a housewife still, and proud of it.

"There is no more vital job in Britain today than the housewife's," she said in an interview.

"Britain's future depends as much on women as on men, for with men taking most of the production strain women must give them every ounce of support they can. They can do this by taking that little extra care of the worker—especially the night worker—and by giving their children the kind of home that will mean so much to them in later life.

"They have to do this in spite of the strain that every British housewife has to endure these days."

As the wife of Lord Nathan, Civil Aviation Minister, and the mother of a family, children and education are her particular interests. She urges more nursery schools, not only to release mothers who are needed in industry, but "to give children between three and four years the advantages of early school training."

Another of her ambitions is to see the "all-purpose" school established throughout London—a school housing all types of children, learning all kinds of subjects in separate departments under the same roof.

Lady Nathan also advocates play centres and recreation grounds and says she would like to see some of the sites of London's bombed buildings converted into parks and open spaces.

"There is no reason why in rebuilding London we should reproduce past errors. Now, through the war, we have a chance to make London a better and happier place in which to live. During my years as chairman I hope to see some progress towards creating a new London. And after that I shall still go on working for it."

GARDEN NOTES

Don't Rush!

Two of the commonest mistakes of the average gardener, especially the one of limited experience, are planting far too much too soon and not planting enough in late May and June. During the first warm weeks of spring practically every human being has the urge to get out and dig. He rushes to the nearest seed store, gets supplies and is liable to put in a whole lot of things which should never be planted until the soil and air warm up permanently.

Such a course usually results in loss and discouragement. Peas, grass seed and a few hardier flowers and vegetables don't mind quite a lot of cold and wet, but the great majority of plants do.

This too-early planting, also, has another disadvantage. Usually all seed or spore is used up too soon and even if weather is favorable the result is too many vegetables ready for the table in July, not nearly enough coming along in August and September. The experienced gardener will always divide his seed into at least three parts, risking the first a little ahead of the regular planting time, putting in the second about the normal time, and saving the last until at least two or three weeks after that. This gives him a continuous supply of the very freshest vegetables right through the season.

At the risk of repetition too much stress cannot be laid on continuous planting of the standard vegetables like lettuce, radish, beans, carrots, beets, corn, etc. All of these will taste much better when they just begin to reach proper maturity. Most of them, especially the beans, lettuce, corn and such things, begin to get tough if left too long. The only way to assure a proper succession is to keep planting them. It is far better, old gardeners say, to have several rows of them coming on two weeks apart than all at one time. In most parts of Canada it is quite possible to keep planting many vegetables right up to mid-July.

Make Ideal Soil
While a natural, rich, open loam makes the best garden soil it is possible to make practically any type suitable.

With both clay and sand, cultivation, plus the incorporation of rotted vegetable matter, will work wonders. One of the best treatments, of course, is plenty of barnyard manure, but this is not always available and especially so in urban locations. Good substitutes are vegetable refuse like tops of beets, carrots, pea pods, lawn clippings, etc., or specially sown green oats, rye or clover dug or plowed under. With clay this opens up the soil and makes it more easily workable, less inclined to bake. With sandy ground, the manure or vegetable material adds strength and helps it retain moisture.

YOUNG WIFE STOLE AUTO TO SLEEP IN

LOS ANGELES.—A navy veteran's young wife, who grew tired of sleeping with her baby in motion picture houses and public parks, admitted that she stole an automobile so she would "have some place to lie down at night."

Mrs. Nyra Burgess, 21-year-old wife of a pharmacist's mate credited with killing 200 Japs, said the housing shortage had forced her and the 17-month-old baby to live in the auto for two months.

"It seems nobody wants a baby," she said. "Not even a hero's baby."

Her husband, Charles, 22, awarded the Purple Heart and holding a Presidential Unit Citation, was sentenced to jail last December for stealing another automobile to use as a family home. He escaped from a county road camp and now awaits arraignment on the escape charge.

Housecleaning Drives "EMPTIES" Into the Open

Housewives Join Search For E. B. Bottles.

Hundreds of housewives in Alberta's rural and urban districts are reported today to be co-operating in the extensive search to apprehend E. B. Bottles, missing from duty for several months.

"Bottles, commonly known by the full name 'Empty Beer Bottles', and also under the alias of 'Empties', may be hiding out in closets, basement corners or attics. Housewives in their spring cleaning drive are searching these favorite haunts of 'Bottles' in an effort to bring the fugitive to justice. A reward of 20 cents per dozen for apprehension and recovery of 'Empties' is offered by Deliveries Ltd.

An acute situation still exists in regard to the shortage of Bottles in Brewing Industry.

Deliveries Ltd., agents for Alberta Breweries, reports present shortages are due solely to "Bottles' disappearance from work. "Empties" cannot be replaced at this time and anyone knowing the whereabouts of "E. B. Bottles" is urged to communicate with their nearest Deliveries Ltd. Depot at Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Banff, Blairmore, Camrose, Drumheller or McLellan.

CASH REWARD

In Alberta cities, arrangements have been made for taking "Bottles" into custody and paying reward at the household or home. At rural points, local freight agents will see that "Bottles" are escorted "Collect" to the nearest Deliveries Ltd. Depot and cash reward will be mailed immediately on recovery.

FLAX UP 1.75

An increase of $1.75 a bushel in the price of flax has been announced by the Federal Government, bringing the total to $5.00 a bushel and making flax one of the best potential money producing crops on the prairies.

The price increase would appear to have come just in time to influence many farmers in their decision to plant flax this year. It is reported that the flax crop this year will be considerably larger than the one which brought close to $25,000,000 to Prairie Farmers in 1946. Last year's flax crop was in the vicinity of 7½ million bushels.

At $5.00 a bushel flax becomes an attractively priced crop for many farmers who have not included it in their crop rotation in the past. Flax is also the manufacture of such a wide variety of materials now in short supply that a ready demand and export market is assured for years to come. Added to that is the fact that sound advice now is available as to methods of eliminating many of the features which once made some farmers decide against flax growing.

A large number of farmers have been growing flax for years now, and invariably the experience of these men has been that, when correctly handled flax is a most profitable crop year after year. With the price increased by $1.75 a bushel, flax gives every indication of being

New Insect Laboratory

Dr. K. W. Neatley, Director, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, recently announced the establishment of a new Science Service Laboratory at Winnipeg—the Stored Product Insect Laboratory. This new laboratory will investigate methods for the control of insects attacking foodstuffs in storage facilities, processing plants, and during transport. The services of the new laboratory will be available to all those concerned with insect problems in farm storage, grain elevators, mill, feed plants, and seed houses. Farmers, country elevator agents, and others are asked to take full advantage of the services offered.

The most important foodstuffs today, when large sections of the world's population are facing starvation, are those capable of transportation and storage in large quantities without deterioration. Such are the cereal grains and their products. But insects take a heavy toll of these valuable foodstuffs.

In Canada, of course, damage to stored products by insects is only a fraction of that in countries such as India. Nevertheless, the potential danger is real enough. Despite the advantages of our climate, and modern storage and processing facilities, insects cause important losses annually in Western Canada, for all stages of cereal production from the farmer's granary to the housewife's kitchen are subject to infestation.

The function of the new laboratory is to investigate and develop methods for reducing insect infestation in stored foods to a minimum. New insecticides and insecticidal methods will be tested both in the laboratory and under practical conditions. The development of practical and effective methods of reducing the enormous losses caused by stored product insects is of great economic importance to the food industries of Western Canada.

Control of men by men paralyzes effort. Control of men by God lessens energy.

even more profitable to the farmer.

There can be little doubt, in view of the price rise, that many farmers will be giving serious consideration to a flax crop this season. To them we can most heartily recommend the new 1947 edition of the booklet "The Truth About Flax", of the National Barley and Linseed Flax Committee at Winnipeg, as a clear and detailed explanation as to the best methods of raising flax.

MY WEEK

by R. J. Deachman

We have now adjusted the ceiling on rents. The landlord, the man at the end of the line has at last got permission to charge us more.

I dropped into a news-stand the other day to buy my favorite mental pabulum, one of the Ottawa daily papers. A front page headline pointed out that rental ceilings were going to be shifted. "That", said I to the man behind the counter, "is good news." He gave me a wicked look. I took it on the chin and didn't blink an eye.

"Well", I said to him, when I got my breath, "we haven't had an increase in rents since the outbreak of the war. Prices of everything else have gone up except interest rates and newspapers, even some of them are higher. It follows naturally that unless rents go up when costs of building have risen our housing shortage will continue. Of course, if a man builds today he is allowed to charge a rent based on present costs but why should we discriminate between the man who builds today and thus helps to provide housing for tomorrow and forget the man who built years ago and helped to provide the housing of today.

By this time I was out of breath and words. He gave me another look more sad than wicked. "I am sorry", said he, "I see I have been talking to a landlord!" His look of content would have withered a cork leg.

I haven't owned a house since 1926. I had several of them long before that swiftly receding date. I never could convince myself that we should treat everybody alike. In a period of general inflation if we have ceilings they should be for everybody; the landlord, the school teacher, the doctor and the working man. But its the exception that proves the rule. Men were overseas, we could not shove up rents on those who were left behind. It would be better if we had taken care of the soldiers families and let rents rise instead of taking it out of the landlord, but all this involved political reactions and then we face mob psychology. We honor the merchant who brings us goods from all the corners of the earth but for some reason we don't honor the man who provides us with homes. Why? Heaven knows and Heaven wisely doesn't answer.

As soon as the announcement was made Mr. Pat Conroy, Secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor made a reply. Said he:

"The government has taken another slice off the real earnings of the Canadian worker by raising domestic rental ceilings by 10 %."

The balance of his comment was to the effect that wages would have to go up. It happens that the costs of housing will rise. We would be started on the race towards depression. Continued inflation brings depression—there is no escape from that. Even labor does not escape. I am thinking of the last war—not the recent one. Between 1914 and 1918 when wage rates moved up 42% and cost of living moved up 45% real wages decreased 2%. We may do it again—we probably will. The maintenance of a steady price level is one of the greatest problems of the hour. Price controls will never do it, they cause more troubles than they cure. Some things are insoluble, this may be one of them.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER ANNOUNCES NEW LINE OF "KB" MODEL MOTOR TRUCKS

International Harvester Company of Canada Limited has just announced a new line of motor trucks.

International Harvester is announcing new models now for two reasons," said Mr. Allen of The Raymond Mercantile Company. "First to provide operators with improved trucks performance; and second, to provide operators with better looking trucks. Even though new models are being introduced, production has not been slowed down. The old models are rolling off the line at International Harvester's Chatham Works, Chatham, Ontario, right alongside the new ones—without a single moment's assembly line stoppage. Trucks are too badly needed to stop production for a minute.

"This year," continued Mr. Allen "has a special meaning for International Harvester, quite aside from the fact that we are building new models. This is Harvester's fortieth anniversary year as truck manufacturer. Yes, forty years ago Harvester began production of the then impressive schedule of one hundred International Auto Wagons, high-wheeled, low-powered vehicles designed, as we then said, 'to pull the farmer out of the mud.'"

"Contrast between the first International and the new 40th anniversary models is marked, I assure you. But as antique-looking as the International Harvester Auto Wagon is, it was the glamor wagon of its day, and served Canadian businessmen and farmers both profitably and well."

Throughout Harvester's new KB line of trucks, in addition to the new styling are 95 new features or mechanical improvements. All of these are contributions to improved performance, longer life and greater economy. International models, Harvester officials point out are not matters of the calendar. New features are under constant test. As quickly as new features or improvement proves its worth, it is incorporated into current production. That's the way the Internationals were created. New features and improvements were steadily incorporated into current production until the features and improvements themselves, with some new styling, created the new models.

Mr. Allen also called attention to the fact that there are 21 basic models in the International truck line—15 "KB" models and 6 "W" or Western models. The gross vehicle weight rating of these 21 models range from 4,400 to 90,000 pounds.

"Notice that I said 'basic models,'" said Mr. Allen, "I use that term basic models because job adaptations and conversions of the 21 models produce more than 1,000 different transport units, all of which might be called models; it may be truthfully said that in the International line today there are more than 1,000 different vehicles."

From the front, new International light-duty models display almost passenger care elegance. Extensions of the chrome radiator grille flow out over the fenders in graceful curves. Above the grille is the well-known International truck Triple Diamond emblem in a newly-styled setting. At the top and front of the hood is a striking ornament. At the sides of the hood the name "International" appears, newly designed in chrome, with the model number of the vehicle underneath. Styling of the heavy-duty models, with less elaborate than that of the lighter units, shows the same modern trend.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Uncle Joe Has A Family

By M. J. COLLINS

"THESE leghorns are all wings and works," Uncle Joe growled as he sliced into the roast chicken. "There ain't enough here for the four of us."

"I told you to dress two of them. Here you can eat cold beef," Aunt Martha said sweetly. Uncle Joe scowled at the platter of sliced meat.

"I'll eat beef," Jeanne said, "right now chicken disagrees with me."

Uncle Joe brightened at the news and passed the platter with alacrity and got on with his carving.

"Joe Quinn, aren't you ever going to learn how to carve?"

"What's wrong with it, it's in chunks, ain't it?" He beamed, Aunt Martha's criticism wasn't going to ruffle him. This was his birthday, but he was more interested in a birthday that was pending in the very near future—Jeanne and Ralph were expecting a baby.

"By gosh, us Quinns need some hooch babies in this family. Ralph, you're the last of the Quinns; if it ain't a hooch I'll cut you clear out of my will," he threatened through a mouthful of white meat.

"At least they're going to have a baby, we never did," Aunt Martha said regretfully.

"Well," Uncle Joe responded, "We just weren't to have one, I guess."

"When are you going to the hospital, Jeanne?" Aunt Martha asked before he could think of something else.

"In about ten days, the doctor thinks I should go in a few days ahead of time."

"When I was a young buck women worked right up to the last minute," Uncle Joe informed them. "No molly-coddling in those days. No, Sir!"

"Look at the infant mortality then," Ralph said.

Uncle Joe wasn't sure of what he meant. "Yes sir, we did right smart by that mortality in those days," he nodded his head in the affirmative.

Jeanne almost exploded with laughter and it took him down a peg or two when they explained what mortality meant.

"Well," he countered, "only the best came through."

"How'd you make it?" Aunt Martha's voice poked him at him.

"Gosh darn it, woman!" He banged his fist down on the table. "You're always bedeviling me."

Aunt Martha fetched in his birthday cake and he forgot all his troubles because Uncle Joe is very fond of cake.

The little party was a success. Uncle Joe enjoyed himself immensely and when they were leaving, he warned, "A boy, remember."

"You'll have Jeanne all worried," Aunt Martha chided when they were alone. "Don't be so insistent, Joe."

"Bet old Judge Hawkins Ralph would have a boy and I ain't backin' down on that bet. No Sir! Well, I got chores to do, got no time for chivin'."

Both Martha and Joe were terribly disappointed that they had no children of their own. Joe almost idolized Ralph and Jeanne in his grumpy way, goodness only knew how he'd act if Ralph and Jeanne had a boy. On her part Martha would rather have a nice cuddly little girl.

Uncle Joe was splitting and piling firewood into the woodshed for the day when his wife came dashing out. "Jeanne's in the hospital, Ralph just phoned from there. Will you go over and do his chores? He's staying in there for awhile at least."

Ralph came out in the afternoon.

The baby was still unborn and he was worried. The doctor had told him not to come back until after supper. He'd had no dinner so Aunt Martha made him up something to eat.

"You go over and get your chores all done up," she told Ralph. "Supper will be ready by then." If he was busy it would keep his mind off the worry of Jeanne.

Supper was a very dismal affair. Aunt Martha kept up chatter, but Ralph answered only in monosyllables. He hardly ate anything and was away before the two old folks had finished. Even Uncle Joe's querulous spirit was at a low ebb. They phoned the hospital, but received the usual perfunctory answer.

"I'm goin' into the hospital," Uncle Joe said. "I'm goin' to find out what's goin' on."

"You are not!" Aunt Martha pushed him down in his chair. "You just stay here. Ralph has enough worries without adding you to them."

"I'd sit in the waiting room and never say a word."

That made Aunt Martha smile. "Besides," she added, "You can't see worth a hoot at night, so how'd you expect to drive in."

Several hours later she finally got him off to bed, still protesting. She was going to stay up.

The sharp jangle of the telephone woke her from drowsing in the rocking chair.

"What's the news?" Uncle Joe was standing in the doorway in his night shirt almost as soon as the bell rang. But he'd had time to grab his old corn-cob pipe.

"Shh!" She held up her finger. "It's a girl."

"Huh! Might as well go back to bed." And he did. Then he stuck his head out as Aunt Martha hung up. "How's Jeanne?"

"Ralph doesn't know yet, said he'd let us know as soon as possible."

Ralph phoned about two hours later. "Everything's O.K. I'll be out for breakfast about seven o'clock." He sounded quite excited.

Uncle Joe was disappointed and almost disconsolate as he sat over his breakfast. He'd been so sure it would be a boy and not the least of his worries was losing his bet to Judge Hawkins.

Ralph's car turned in and he blew the horn long and loudly as he came up the driveway. He fairly burst into the kitchen.

Uncle Joe tried hard to brighten up. "A girl, eh?" was all he could manage.

"You bet!" Ralph slapped him on the back. "A little beauty to be, and guess what, Uncle Joe: A boy too!"

"A boy!" Uncle Joe almost jumped straight into the air. "Two babies?"

"Yes sir, twins!"

Aunt Martha was so surprised she dropped an egg onto the stove instead of in the frying pan.

Uncle Joe stuck his chest out with pride. "Boy! I knew we'd do it."

SAYS ARTHRITIS PUZZLE GRADUALLY TAKING FORM

The various forms of rheumatism or arthritis are the greatest cause of chronic disability in this country, Dr. Wallace Graham says in an article—"Arthritis, the Great Mystery"—in the current March-April issue of the magazine Health, official publication of the Health League of Canada. Dr. Graham is president of the Canadian Rheumatism Association.

"Although no dramatic cure for certain forms of arthritis has yet been found, there is evidence of a strong revival of interest by both physician and layman in what has been called the 'forgotten disease,'" Dr. Graham says. "Over 2,500 papers on rheumatism have been written in the English-speaking world during the past five years and, as more and more scientific information is accumulated, bit by bit one of the great medical puzzles is taking form."

"Using the term in its broadest sense, some two hundred forms of rheumatism have been described, including about one hundred different types of arthritis. However, the majority of rheumatic patients suffer from one of the common varieties, namely: rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis, degenerative arthritis, rheumatic fever, gout, gonorrhoeal arthritis, fibrositis, or a psychoneurosis with rheumatic symptoms." Most of these forms and their relief measures are described in the magazine article.

Dr. Graham says that these types vary greatly in their cause, mode of onset, symptoms and resulting disability. For some a ready cure is available; for others treatment must consist of a program of undramatic measures which, though slow, will preserve joint movement and prevent deformity in most cases.

Rheumatoid arthritis still presents the most serious problem, Dr. Wallace says. It tends to attack the younger group, even little children, and the fundamental cause has not yet been established. He says, however, that great interest has been aroused by frequent observations that rheumatoid arthritis becomes quiescent during pregnancy or during a severe attack of jaundice, only to recur after delivery of the baby or after the jaundice has subsided.

"Intensive research, therefore, is being carried out in an effort to find the alleviating factor in these two conditions."

Dr. Wallace concludes his article: "Although much has been accomplished in the field of rheumatism during the past few years, the problem is a gigantic one and facilities to treat all sufferers in this country with modern forms of therapy simply do not exist. The public mind has been focused for years on diseases which kill, such as cancer and tuberculosis, but it is hoped that in the near future similar recognition will be given to the various forms of rheumatism or arthritis."

Jap night spots recently noticed a slump in food business when a report circulated that poisoned meat had been sold on the black market. One place that specialized in "beefsteaks" put up a sign stating: "Absolutely safety guaranteed for our beefsteaks. We are using horsemeat as heretofore."

WEATHER DEPOTS WILL BE SET UP ACROSS ROUTES OF NORTH ATLANTIC

LONDON—Safer travel for airlines traversing North Atlantic and Scandinavian routes will result from establishment of 13 floating weather stations which will operate in the Atlantic after July 1.

These stations will collect information about weather tendencies and wind velocities and radio it to London for compilation into meteorological bulletins to be made available to all countries.

The United States will provide eight of the floating stations, Britain two—sharing maintenance of a third with Norway and Sweden—France one, and Holland and Belgium one between them. Provision of these vessels was laid down in the international agreement drawn up by the Provisional International Civil Air Organization which was signed last September.

Four Royal Navy corvettes which conveyed merchant ships across the Atlantic with lend-lease cargoes during the war are being converted for use with this weather station fleet.

They are the Snowflake, Thyme, Saxifrage and Meadowsweet, each of 1,400 tons and of the "flower" class. They are being stripped of their armament and fitted with the latest radio and radar equipment.

Shower baths, comfortable bunks and recreational facilities are being incorporated for the benefit of the crew who will spend 27 days at sea—21 on station—and 15 in port.

When on station the vessels will be anchored 350 miles west of the Irish coast and 400 miles west of the Faroe Islands.

Although the immediate personnel will be all male there is possibility that women expert meteorologists will accompany the corvettes at a later date. Supplementing the normal complement of the corvettes will be the meteorological staff of 12 officers, 20 petty officers and 22 ratings, all skilled in use of radar and other navigational aids.

TORONTO MAN FOUND THAT HONESTY PAYS

TORONTO.—A diamond-studded gold wrist watch was found in the Union Station by George Hutchinson, hotel porter, who gave it to station authorities. When advertised the watch was claimed by its woman owner, and Hutchinson commended for his honesty by the Toronto Terminal Railway Company. The hotel has arranged to present him with a gratuity.
